How will this course enhance student achievement? What changes in knowledge, skills and dispositions should be expected as a result of this course?

Course Description: In this section, give a descriptive overview of the course. State how the course relates to the College of Charleston’s conceptual framework and theme of making the teaching and learning connection
Goals/Standards/Objectives: All goals and objectives are correlated to the C of C Teaching and Learning Standards. List the goals and objectives for the course. Reference the course objectives to the appropriate School of Education, Health, and Human Performance standard(s) which apply. Show and justify how scientifically-based research is incorporated into the course material. Please include a paragraph that addresses student learning objectives. Please list no more than three to four student outcomes (what the student will do or be able to do upon completion of this course).

Student Learning Outcomes: List 3 - 5 Learning Outcomes as a result of this class. These can be listed or in paragraph form.

In-class Course Activities: These should be designed based on SC Professional Development Standards and the Learning Forward Professional Development standards. Examples of learning activities include lecture/presentation, whole group or small group discussion, cooperative activities, individual or group reports/presentations, simulations, etc. The use of technology should be incorporated into the lesson to enhance instruction. Show how technology will be used to enhance participants learning in this course.

Out-of-class assignments: List required outside assignments and give specific details of each requirement. Examples include the following: Reading, book reports, presentations, short papers, critiques, responses, term papers, research and reviews, individual annotated bibliographies, lesson/unit development, implementation and evaluation, research projects, workshop development, interviews, observations, group reports/presentation, change papers, etc. A rubric should show expectations for each assignment and must be included at the end of the syllabus.

Assessment and Grading: Explain how students will be assessed on each required assignment. Provide rubrics for each assessment unless it is a test where a specific grade will be given. Explain how feedback will be issued in written form if any student appears to be lagging in any of the assessed areas. Since course success relies heavily on the participation of each area, any areas of concern will be addressed immediately. Describe the procedures and criteria for evaluation and grading assignments and assigning final grade.

Grading Scale: Specify which grading option will be followed. (Pass/Fail or School of Education, Health, and Human Performance grading scale) Explain how grades will be earned. For example, in order to receive a grade of passing, the student must receive at least 229 points of the possible 310 points available. (74% of total points) If a student has 228 points or less, the grade will be failing. If the course is graded using the School of Education, Health, and Human Performance grading scale, a percentage breakdown for value of each assignment should be included. Explain the basis for determining the final grade. If School of Education, Health, and Human Performance grading is used, the lowest passing grade to be given would be a C. The grading scale should be included on the syllabus.

Attendance: This statement could be used or another of your choice. For any grade to be awarded, participants must attend at least 85% of the class hours. Participants are expected to attend all sessions, be punctual, and remain for the duration of each class. In the rare case where some absence is required, make up work will be assigned where it is practical to do so.
Attendance is also part of the grading scale. Students may be withdrawn by the instructor if absences violate these guidelines.

Add these to the syllabus:

Professionalism and Ethics: As a member of the professional development community, participants are expected to evidence a high standard of personal conduct, respect and honorable professional characteristics in the presentation of their course assignments and interaction with class peers.
